Please know that I'm truly, deeply, grateful for your purchase of this print. I have cried because this is my childhood dream. On a personal note, let me explain the thoughts in my painting.

The sign represents my youngest sister, Rhonda. She always wrote me love letters growing up with backward S's. She buys on impulse and sells one hour later. (she probably sold her print)

The potted daffodils represent my brother. The different one - the only boy. I describe him as a cross between Daniel Boone and Hank Williams, Jr. He's the oldest. Gerald

The bucket of daffodils is me - the oldest girl of 9. I'm mischievous-love to play jokes and pranks. Extremely loyal. I'm supporting the flag which represents my sister Lisa. She loves flags. I saved her life as an infant and think of this at Christmas when I watch "It's a Wonderful Life." It is!

The six jars of daffodils are Dawn, Vickie, Tammy, Pam, Betty & Sheila. Beautiful sisters inside and out. They're a rainbow of colors!

The wagon is dad. A tenderhearted and generous man holding us all together. AN AWESOME DADDY!

The handle is mom, attached to dad until her death. She tried to lead us in the right direction military style. What branch of service was she? None. We thought we were in the military. We're a musical bunch. We play the radio!
